Charlotte Frey is a Swiss-qualified lawyer specializing in international sports arbitration and sports law, as well as domestic and international commercial arbitration. She advises clients and represents them as counsel before arbitral tribunals, in particular before the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS), and the Swiss courts.

Charlotte's practice is primarily focused on sports law, including doping-related matters and football-related contractual and disciplinary disputes. She also handles association law matters, debt-collection proceedings and commercial cases.

Before joining Lévy Kaufmann-Kohler as an associate in 2019, Charlotte interned at Lévy Kaufmann-Kohler between 2016 and 2017, following which she completed her mandatory traineeship in a Geneva-based boutique law firm.

Charlotte is a member of the Geneva Bar, fluent in French, English and German.
